

#TimeLedger

Employee Quick Guide

Clock-in, clock-out, and privacy basics

Public build 0.1.0-alpha.14-public.1

A portable, local-first time ledger for attractions, tours, events, guest-service operations, seasonal venues, and similar teams.

Privacy note. Workforce exports may contain names, shift times, manager attribution, custom fields, and other employment data. Review files before sharing them.

1. Clock in

1. Open TimeLedger_Employee.html or the Employee page/link supplied by your Manager.
2. Select your name or enter the profile information your operation requires.
3. Confirm your displayed category and position.
4. Press Clock In once. Confirm the status changes to show an active shift.

If your name, role, or status is wrong, stop and ask a Manager before creating additional clock records.

2. Clock out

1. Return to the same Employee page/state used for your shift when possible.
2. Confirm your profile/name before clocking out.
3. Press Clock Out once and confirm the shift is no longer active.

If something looks wrong

- Do not repeatedly press Clock In or Clock Out to “fix” a record.
- Tell a Manager which shift or time needs review.
- If the page was refreshed or moved to another device, tell the Manager before reconstructing the record.
- Use manual-entry controls only if your organization specifically directs you to.

3. Files and privacy

The Employee page can carry local state and may offer .wps, Offline Copy, export, or state-link actions depending on the workflow configured by your Manager.

Protect workforce files

- Do not post real clock records, state links, screenshots, or exported files publicly.
- Only send files or links through channels approved by your organization.
- If you accidentally expose a workforce file, notify the responsible Manager/owner so they can decide what action is needed.

#TimeLedger records time-ledger data locally in the browser/page state. It does not independently verify your real-world identity.

Need help?

Contact your Manager or operations lead with your name, the approximate shift/date, and what you expected the page to show. Avoid changing additional records until the issue is reviewed.
